RE: Letter of Recommendation

To Whom It May Concern,

I wanted to take a moment and recognize the fantastic job that Corporate Casework has done for me on the Columbia Sportswear/Mountain Hardware project. The phenomenal level of service that I received on this project not only helped us meet the impossible schedule, but also helped us to maintain the highest quality of the finished product.

On this project I came to rely on the accurate information I received from Jason Eversole (PM), and the field installation team. This project was a 21,000 sf retail space in downtown Seattle. The forward-looking insight of the Corporate Casework team headed off a great number of potential problems and issues. I appreciated the fact that made sure they ordered more than enough of the specialty wood products to insure there would be no delays. The relationship and trust we established is one that I wish I could achieve with all my sub-contractors. I know that the pricing I receive from this team is not only fair, but has been carefully thought through to insure there isn't a better, more economical way to perform the task. The level of quality in the workmanship they provide is truly second to none.

The store designer proclaimed that this store had the highest level of quality of any of the stores being built nationwide. The credit for this goes to the Corporate Casework team for taking the extra time to carefully miter the corners of the wood walls, and to not take shortcuts on quality to keep schedule. Jason made sure to add additional manpower to maintain both quality and schedule, as well as picking up many extras along the way!

The willingness of Corporate Casework to be a true team player helped me to make both of these projects truly successful. I look forward to working with them in the future!

Sincerely,
